CIVILIAN FLYER WILL ATTEMPT TO MAKE ROUND TRIP

TOOK OFF FROM OAKLAND FIELD IN FACE OF HEAVY FOG OFF COAST

By Associated Press.

Municipal Airport, Oakland, Calif., July 14.—The silver winged monoplane, "City of Oakland" manned by Pilot Ernest L. Smith and Navigator Emory B. Bronte, took off here at 10:40 a. m. today for a 2,400 mile flight to Hawaii.

The plane left the runway about 4,500 feet from the starting point, on its second take-off attempt, the first having gone amiss when Smith halted after veering toward a crowd of spectators.

As it arose slowly from the ground the escort planes that had been circling about during the delay, after the first hop off, fell in behind. The Smith plane headed due west and disappeared in the low fog over San Francisco Bay.

Spectators who watched the ship through field glasses expressed astonishment when Smith apparently spurted up and passed one of the escort planes. The plane appeared near the field again but Captain Royle explained that Smith was not going to land, that he was merely gaining altitude.

Finally the monoplane straightened out and headed straight for the Golden Gate.

Smith said he expected to land at Wheeler field the army's airport twenty miles southwest of Honolulu about twenty-four hours after he started.

Flight Delayed Nearly Two Hours

By Associated Press.

Oakland, Cal., July 14.—Reports that a bank of fog was hanging off the Golden Gate in the path of Ernest L. Smith caused the civilian flier to delay his take-off for Honolulu today. At the time the delay was announced it was almost two hours after he originally had planned to start.

After hearing the weather bureau's report on conditions over the airway between Oakland and Hawaii, Captain William Royle, flight manager, said: "Well, we might as well start right away, things are looking well here."

Bronte, Smith and Royle discussed the matter and when they separated Bronte and Smith climbed into their plane and prepared to start.

The motor was "given the gun." The crowds yelled and automobile horns were heard above the roar of the plane. The plane leaped down the runway and carrier pigeons were released, telling of the start. They did not leave the ground, however.

The plane slowed up and pulled to the right of the runway, coming to a halt.

Smith said the reason he did not take off was because he struck a rut in the runway.

Frowning Sky is Ignored by Flyers

By Associated Press.

Oakland, Calif., July 14.—Ignoring a frowning sky and apparently unfavorable weather reports, Ernest L. Smith, civilian flyer, and Emory Bronte, his navigator, ordered their monoplane, "City of Oakland" made ready for a take-off today on what they hope will be a round trip flight between here and Honolulu.

Final preparations for the flight began shortly after midnight. The weather chart showed the prospect of low clouds and fog for a considerable distance over the Pacific, with north and northwest winds—not at all favorable for a westward flight— prevalent from here to the halfway mark. The scheduled hop-off is for 9 a. m.

Smith climbed into the pilot's cabin at 8:56 a. m., and two small cages containing carrier pigeons were shoved into the navigator's cabin. These birds were to be released 200 and 400 miles out to sea and were to return to their Oakland cote.

Army Flyers Wish Them Luck

Lieutenants Maitland and Hegenberger, army fliers, arived about twenty minutes before the time for the hop off. The crowds cheered them enthusiastically. The army fliers discussed with Smith flying conditions between here and Hawaii and gave him advice as to the landing field.

Bronte and Smith thanked the army men for the pointers. The fliers shook hands and Maitland said, "Well we're going to see you get over there, old man. Good luck."

The crowd was estimated at 5,000.

Four navy planes enroute from San Diego to Reno, Nevada, were on the field to act as escorts to Smith out over the bay to the Golden Gate.

One by one the escort planes took off to swing about overhead, waiting for Smith to take the air.

Indications are that the rain will continue through the day.

HEAD OF BRITISH DELEGATION ASKS CONTINUATION WORK

AGREEMENT MAY BE REACHED ON OTHER CRAFT IF NOT CRUISERS, HE SAYS

By Associated Press.

London, July 14.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Geneva says that the general impression there tonight at the end of today's much discussed plenary session was that it virtually marks the end of the conference, at least as a means of securing a limitation of armaments.

By Associated Press.

Geneva, Switzerland, July 14.—The plenary session of the tripartite naval conference today, which had been looked forward to with much speculation by observers, came to an end tonight with no rupture of negotiations.

On the contrary, all the speeches, made by the official representatives of the United States, Great Britain and Japan, although they unequivocally explained the various positions on the cruiser problem, were distinctly temperate in tenor and breathed note of hope that the conference would eventually succeed.

W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the British Admiralty and head of the British delegation, and Admiral Jellicoe insisted that the British need a large number of cruisers with a fixed minimum of 70.

Hugh S. Gibson, head of the American delegation, insisted upon the necessity of a low tonnage in order to limit the burden of taxation and to prevent naval expansion.

Admiral Viscount Ishii, speaking for Japan, publicly proposed limiting the number of 10,000 ton cruisers to ten or less for the United States and Great Britain and seven or less for Japan.

Before Mr. Bridgeman began his address, Admiral Jellicie, member of the British delegation, was introduced by Hugh S. Gibson, head of the American delegation, who presided.

Admiral Jellicoe presented a justification of the British cruiser needs, saying that it was difficult to reduce them in view of the responsibility of the navy to guardian of the mother country and the dominions and the land communications which must be protected. This necessity, he said, was proved by the activity of German raiders during the war, including the raids of the Emden.

"If we found 114 cruisers insufficient during the great war, our lowest possible figure now is 70," he said.

Mr. Gibson, after averring hope of the success of the conference said that the Japanese delegation had advised a procedure which was substantially in accord with the minimum cruiser levels, submitted by the United States, but added that difficulties had arisen in finding a common ground between the low level proposed by the Japanese and the level which would be involved in fulfillment of the naval requirements advocated by Mr. Bridgeman.

Mr. Gibson declared that finding a common ground which would obviate the burden of competitive building was the real task before the conference. He insisted that naval needs are relative and not absolute and declared that the United States did not feel justified in agreeing upon a tonnage so high that, far from limiting the burden of taxation, would merely sanction naval expansion.

By Associated Press.

Geneva, July 14.—W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the British Admiralty and head of the British delegation to the tri-partite naval conference speaking at today's plenary session, declared that nothing had occurred at the conference which imperils the good relations between the nations represented.

Mr. Bridgeman said that the British delegation had asked for a plenary session because it believed that the atmosphere of the conference was being vitiated by gross misrepresentations of the British case in certain quarters. He declared that some trouble had been caused by parties who would rejoice at the failure of the conference.

Even if no agreement were possible on cruisers, he declared, it would be worth while to reach an agreement on destroyers and subarines. In compliance of the British proposal of a definite reduction of the power of every type of warship would reduce their size.

Great Britain's reasons for hope is based on the apparent need of a large number of cruisers.

Shupe was syphoning the gasoline out of an automobile tank with a piece of garden hose, and breathed in a quantity of the gasoline before he realized the flow had started.

THREE PERSONS SERIOUSLY HURT IN OKLAHOMA WRECK

WEAKENED TRACK ON ACCOUNT OF HEAVY RAINS GIVEN AS CAUSE

By Associated Press.

Atoka, Okla., July 14.—Three persons were injured seriously early today when North-bound Missouri, Kansas & Texas passenger train No. 4 struck a washout near Atoka and was wrecked. The injured are:

B. Hamilton, Atoka, baggageman.

Mrs. Rebe Merriman, Muskogee.

Matt Ward, Dallas.

Trainmen said the train was proceeding through a heavy rain which made visibility poor, when it struck a slight grade washout that caused the track to sag. The locomotive and tender crossed the spot safely, but ten passenger coaches and one baggage car were derailed.

First reports were that the wreck had been caused by a landslide, but passengers arriving here said they were erroneous. Hotels and homes here were thrown open for the 200 stranded passengers, who will remain until the tracks are cleared so traffic can be continued northward.

Rain that fell in torrents throughout the night in this section had worn away the grade at the point of the accident, which was a slight fill. Gauges showed that 8.8 inches of rain fell during the night. Streams were at flood stage and highways were under water in places.

Wreck trains have been ordered from Muskogee and Denison, Texas, to clear the track.

LIFE'S GREATEST THRILLS

The average man gets three great thrills during his more or less hectic journey through life. Of course some of the more fortunate human beings get more than the allotted three and then there is the thrill that comes once in a generation, such as Lindbergh's New York to Paris flight.

But there are three thrills that are almost universal. That is a majority of men get them.

They are:

When a man reaches his majority. When the age of 21 years is at last reached and he is a man—in the eyes of the law anyway.

The next one comes when a man marries. He may marry many times but the only genuine thrill comes when he starts his first adventure on the sea of matrimony. And third and greatest of all the thrills is when the first baby is born. There is nothing in life to compare with it and words cannot describe the emotions of the proud father.

These three thrills add much to life's happiness.

Who is a greater man than the lad who has just turned twenty-one? At what other time does one get the same view of life? The world is before him and is his. Life is all in the future and there is nothing behind. Even though the years to come may bring complete failure nothing can take away that one and only thrill of reaching one's manhood in the sight of the law.

And when a man marries. This includes many little thrills leading up to the major event. He first falls in love with the most beautiful sweetest and smartest girl in the world. Then there is that period when doubt creeps into his mind as to whether this one and only girl cares for him. He is hot and cold by spells—can't eat or sleep—life is dark and dreary and then viewed through rose colored glasses. He treads the depths and the heights. He knows he is not good enough for her but never gives up hope. At last she consents to be his wife—my isn't it a wonderful and glorious world after all. At last the wedding ceremony is over and he never understands just how he captured this worderful girl all for his very own.

And then the baby is born. Proud! Well that hardly describes the emotions of the father. He thrills and thrills over this tiny mite of humanity and when this bit of his own flesh and blood firmly grips his finger with the timy hand and coos—well, the father floats away on the lightest clouds and the greatest of all the thrills of life has reached its pinnacle. That wonder of wonders which baffles man with all his wisdom, science and invention—the unanswerable proof of a Supreme Being—the spark of human life—is his.

These three thrills belong to the most of us and it is such thrills as these that make life worth the living. Every man is a potential hero but every man does not have the opportunity of becoming a hero. After all is said and done is not the average man the greatest hero of them all. It is the average man that keeps the business of the world moving and when the peaceful trend of life is thrown into turmoil by the declaration of war and the prevalence of flood, earthquakes and pestilence—is it not the average man that furnishes the shock troops—the average man that rebuilds and aids the stricken area—and the average man that responds when the call of the needy is heard?

Without the average man to cheer him the hero would indeed be a forlorn and lonesome sight.

The hero does the unusual and the average man makes him the hero.

Many a man enjoys his old age dreaming over again his three great thrills in life as he watches the antics of his grandchildren and pictures them approaching these same thrills.

Life is not so bad after all when we take into account the many things we have to be thankful for.

FORD'S RECANTATION

Henry Ford's repudiation of his Dearborn Independent with its criticism of the Jews covering a long period of time and his apology and pleas of forgiveness is typically Henry Ford in its dramatic suddenness.

Mr. Ford maintains that he was not aware of the precise character of the anti-Jewish articles, that he did not realize that a large group of American citizens were being offended by them and that he never harbored any malice toward the Jews as a people. So now, after several years, his attention has been called to the matter and he humbly begs forgiveness, has given orders that such articles must not be published and turns the independent into a house organ for the gigantic Ford business.

Naturally there will be some who will see a connection between this humility and the lessened production of Ford cars during the last year or between this and the $1,000,000 slander suit brought against Ford by Sapiro. It is much easier to reject such speculation and accept this as merely Henry Ford, the same Henry Ford who sought by his Peace Ship to get the fighting boys out of the trenches by Christmas.

Whatever the Ford motive, all but the bigoted will rejoice that a source of national irritation is to be plugged, that a man once persuaded he was even unconsciously doing an unkind, unjust thing, has had the courage to step out and express his regret and make no bones about it. If any further evidence were required to prove the bigness and greatness of Henry Ford, his recantation in this instance would be adequate.

AUTOS AND PROSPERITY

After all the oratory in Washington last year in support of farm aid legislation the American public was agreably surprised to learn that the demand for automobiles in the agricultural states had increased as high as 150 per cent this year while there was a sharp falling off in certain industrial states.

If the automobile industry is an accurate barometer of economic conditions then Germany—as well as Middle West farmers—is enjoying greater prosperity. Before the war Germany had one automobile for each 800 of its population. Today, however, she ranks sixth among the nations of the world in the number of automobiles registered, having one vehicle for every 196 persons, as compared with one for every five in the United States, one for every fifty-three in France and one for every fifty-five in England.

The United States is interested in the German demand for automobiles because it manufactures nearly thirty per cent of the cars on German streets and highways. In 1926 alone this country shipped $5,000,000 worth of automobiles to Germany.

It is gratifying that the American producer is obtaining his share of Germany's automobile business, for it means employment of thousands of American workmen in the great diversity of fields which help produce and deliver every automobile.

A municipal aviation field should be given some serious thought without delay. The greatest asset of the city of the near future will be a conveniently located landing field to offer facilities to air traffic. Corsicana should acquire the needed acreage for this purpose even though its development is delayed for some time.

The stereotyped message "sleeping under blankes" on postal cards from the vacationists are now cluttering up the mail of the stay-at-homes. Yes—we are sleeping unor blankets, too—but the blankets are stored in the attic.

Who remembers when it was considered virtually impossible for an eligible girl to attract a real catch unless she could paint a lot of yellow roses on a china pin tray?

Corn is made and cotton is coming along nicely in Navarro county. Prospects for a Fall and Winter were never brighter in this section of the state.

ALIENS DESTINED TO COTTON FIELDS BEING SENT HOME

By The Associated Press.

Hidalgo, Texas, July 12.—Deportation of 124 Mexican aliens, who are alleged to have smuggled themselves across the Rio Grande at some point between this place and Rio Grande City, is under way here today. The entire number will be placed in the custody of the Mexican immigration officials.

Ten trucks carrying the aliens, who were destined for the cotton field of Central Texas, were stopped by immigration officials near Palfurrias, and the truck drivers compelled to bring their freight of aliens back to Hidalgo.

This capture makes approximately 350 alien laborers who have been stopped by the immigration officials in the past two weeks and deported to Mexico. Another capture of fourteen was effected Monday near Rudolph, but these will be deported at Brownsville.

Reports received here are to the effect that labor agents for Central and Northern Texas have been operating on both sides of the Rio Grande, some of the aliens stating that they had been induced to smuggle across the river by the report of high wages to be paid in the cotton fields.

NEGRO WHO REFUSED OFFER FOR PROPERTY SEVERELY BEATEN

By Associated Press.

Birmingham, Ala., July 13.—While state investigators were procuring evidence against masked men who have perpetrated three brutal floggings in Alabama within the last two weeks, evidence was given county authorities here today that Arthur Hitt, a negro landowner, was flogged unmercifully several days ago and frightened into disposing of several acres of valuable land for $800.

After refusing an offer to buy the land, Hitt told Sheriff Hartsfield that a band of masked men roused him from his bed, took him seven miles from his home, strapped him to a tree and flogged him with straps and limbs from tres. Three days later he signed away his property.

Scars and ugly welts on the negro's back and a large gash on his forehead bear out his story, according to the sheriff.

Sheriff Hartsfield believes the property which is valued at $6,000 may be regained for the negro because of the manner in which the deed is alleged to have been obtained. The deed also is said to be a clue to the identity of the floggers.

ERWIN TO PILOT DALLAS PLANE IN SERIES OF FLIGHTS

Special to the Sun.

Dallas, Texas, July 12.—To advertise Dallas and Texas to the world as vitally interested in aviation and aerial progress, sixteen of the city's most prominent business men, in association with The Dallas News and The Dallas Journal, have banded themselves together for a Dallas airplane which, in the hands of a nationally famous pilot, Captain William P. Erwin—will attempt a series of long distance flights, emulating the example set and the glorious results achieved by Lindbergh, Chamberlin and other pioneers in the conquest of the heavens.

The Dallas airplane is bound to no individual project nor is it linked up with any particular prize contest. It is a free agent to be sent forth from Dallas as the city's official representative in the air. The sole motive of the sponsors in giving their money to the enterprise is to broadcast to the world at large that Dallas' "hat is in the ring."

"Lone Star Bill" Erwin, who will fly the official Dallas ship in the name of Dallas, is one of the great heroes of the World War. He wears the Distinguished Service Cross, with two oak leaves; the French Croix de Guerre, and the Aero Club's Medal of Valor. He is officially credited with eleven enemy planes which he brought down by skillful flying and the courageous use of the machine gun on the fields of France. Captain Erwin was himself shot down six times by the Germans, but each time, miraculously, escaped without serious injury. Erwin has spent more than 4,000 hours in the air and, in all that time, with the exception of the six times he was brought to earth by the Germans, has never "crashed."

The official airplane of Dallas is now in process of construction at the plant of the Swallow Airplane Company at Wichita, Kan. It will be delivered in Dallas on or about Aug. 1, and shortly after that time, will "hop off" in its first challenge of the air. The plane will be similar to the one that Lindbergh used, but will have a greater wing area, and a cruising range several hundred miles greater than did the "Spirit of St. Louis."

The great ambition of the Dallas men behind the project is to have the Dallas airplane the first to cross the Pacific Ocean.

Those who are the sponsors of the plane, in the name of Dallas, are Karl Hoblitzelle, president of the Majestic Theater; J. Perry Burnus, capitalist; Phil T. Prather, president of the Prather-Cadillac Company; E. Gordon Perry, president of Perry Motor Company and Investment Finance Corporation; Otto Herold, president of the Oriental Laundry; W. H. L. McCourtie, president Trinity Portland Cement Company; Fred F. Florence, first vice president Republic National Bank; C. R. Miller, president C. R. Miller Manufacturing Company; John W. Carpenter, president of the Dallas Railway and Terminal Company and the Texas Interurban Railway Conipany; R. A. Crawford, vice president and general manager of the Lone Star Gas Company; Julius Schepps, president of the Schepps-Kleber Baking Company; C. W. Hobson, president of the Love Field Company; W. A. Green, Jr., representing the Dallas Department Stores Association; Captain William P. Erwin, pilot of the Dallas airplane, A. H. Belo Corporation, publishers of The Dallas News and Journal, and several others.

As soon as the Dallas plane is delivered the sponsors and the Dallas people as a whole plan to play the role of hosts to all of Texas and the Southwest at a monstrous christening ceremony at Love Field, Dallas. A few days later the plane will leave Dallas on a non-stop test flight to San Francisco, and it is expected that fully 50,000 people will be in Dallas that day to see the famous war ace take off in the first of a series of ventures, the success of any one of which will undoubtedly attract to himself, Dallas and the State of Texas the eyes of the entire civilized world.

Reindeer Forage

Lichens, principal winter forage for Alaska's reindeer herds, may suffer tremendous damage from fire. The United States Biological Survey says that even under favorable conditions it may take 25 years or more for a renewal of lichen growth following fire.

Alaskan reindeer herds total 400,000 head. Biologists warn that increased herds depend upon continued maintenance of present forage crops.

LEAF WORM HAS APPEARED IN SOME PARTS OF TEXAS APPROVED POISON METHOD

Special to the Sun.

College Station, Texas, July 12.—There have been a great many rumors of the presence of leafworms at various points in South Texas. The entomologist of the Extension Service has investigated thees and finds confirmation only at one point; namely, in Nueces County, in which section considerable damage is being done. Individual leafworms have been found also in the Waco district, but not in numbers to cause concern at the present time.

It is difficult to present any forecast regarding a general leaf worm infestation because the extension of an infesattion is contingent upon various factors, including weather conditions. Preparation for the two weeks just previous to July 6th over a great portion of the state has been favorable to their spread, and we believe that if this condition continues the worms may be present in considerable numbers as far north as the Red River by the 20th of July. In case of hot, dry weather immediately ensuing, the extension of infestation may be delayed for a considerable length of time.

Enough poison appears to be stored at readily available points in or near Texas to initiate a leafworm fight, this amounting to sufficient to dust 500,000 acres once. The best estimates furnished us are to the effect that poison sufficient to dust 700,000 acres more can be moved into our territory in about a week's time. When a demand on stocks develops the factories will, no doubt, hurry up production so that farmers may expect to be reasonably well taken care of.

Dusting with calcium arsenate is the approved method of leafworm control, using, at the stage of growth that most of our cotton has attained at the present time, from three to five pounds per acre. Where dews are not experienced, spraying with the same material, using about two pounds to fifty gallons of water, will be the best method, keeping the mixture well agitated during application. As long as calcium arsenate can be obtained, we would advise against the use of Paris green, although where necessary this can be used, but in the case of dry dust the addition of at least four or five parts of hydrated lime to one part of poison should be used, and in the case of a spray at least an equal amount of the same material should be added. We advise against the use of white arsenic, mixtures of white arsenic and sal soda, or of stock dips, so long as calcium arsenate, lead arsenate, or Paris green can be obtained.

Weevils are a serious menace to the cotton crop this season, and with promises for a fair price for cotton this fall we believe that farmers may expect a margin of profit in the use of dry calcium arsenate dust in the sections subject to dews, and if the land is capabie of producing a half bale per acre, calcium arsenate for this purpose should be applied at intervals of about five days as long as the weevils remain abundant.

As a result of the excellent crop of corn now ripening, unusual damage from the boll worm may be expected to develop towards the end of July. Where these have attained a stage of growth that they are boring into the cotton bolls, little is to be expected in the way of control from applications of poison. Since the very small worms immediately after hatching feed upon the leaves for several days applications of poison at that time will kill considerable numbers. While it may be a question if poison can be applied with profit for the control of this insect alone, yet where it is applied at intervals for the control of boll weevils and leaf worm, a degree of control of the boll worm may be expected also, which will be proportional to the number of applications made.

As the situation develops the public may expect to be advised by future press letters emanating from the Extension Service and appearing in the columns of the press. Farmers and others interested are invited to seek information also from their local county agricultural agents or from the Extension Service at College Station.

Experimenters Seek Perfect Watermelon

By Associated Press.

Springfield, Ill., July 12.—A quest for the perfect watermelon is nearing its conclusion in the division of plant industry of the Illinois department of agriculture.

The paragon of watermelons must have delicious flavor, be of marketable size, shape and conformation, with a rind which will withstand the strain of shipping, and it must have stamina to resist the disease known as watermelon wilt.

After several seasons of experiment experts have produced melons sweet enough, sound enough and of the right shape, but the only melon which resists wilt is a round one, and the public wants its watermelons elongated.

The wilt-proof variety is being crossed again with other varieties.

Find Chewers Spread Disease In Tobacco

By Associated Press.

Lexington, Ky., July 12.—Workers who chew tobacco while weeding and transplanting tobacco may spread the disease known as mosaic or dry weather frenching, investigations by Dr. W. D. Valleau and E. M. Johnson, plant pathologists at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, reveal.

Should the chewing tobacco be infested the disease is spread easily, the pathologists point out. The virus has been found extremely resistant to drying, living in dry tobacco as long as 31 years.

Tests showed the disease rarely is developed in plant beds sowed and then not touched by man, whereas when handled in the ordinary manner by men chewing infested tobacco the frenching spread rapidly.

Bouquet of Edibles Recieved by Editor From J. P. Redden

Bouquets do not necessarily have to be flowers. Regardless of whether the bouquets are composed of verbiage, vegetables, fruit or flowers, they are always welcome.

The editor of the Sun received a bouquet Thursday from a friend of long standing. This friend, Mr. J. P. Redden, is wise in the ways of the world and knows the wants of his fellowman. The bouquet was beautiful, fragrant and held an irresistible appeal to the inner man. The ensemble included magnificent specimens of the well known cantaloupe, tomato and fig.

A perfect blending of color was this bouquet—the mellow golden glow of the cantaloupe melting into the rich red of the tomato, with a background of the dull fig brown. Indeed a splash of color to please the most artistic eye.

One glance and the inner man must be appeased.

Yes—all were sampled and the editor wishes to take this means of expressing his appreciation to Mr. Redden and compliment him upon his generosity and excellent judgment in the selection of this wonderful bouquet of edibles.

FLOOD CONDITIONS PREVAIL OVER LARGE PART OF OKLAHOMA

HEAVIEST DOWNPOUR IN MEMORY OF INHABITANTS FELL IN ARDMORE

By Associated Press.

Oklahoma City, July 14.—Flood conditions prevailed in the southeastern section of the State today as the result of torrential rains that fell throughout the night and this morning. Rain was general throughout most of the State.

Total rainfall at Atoka at noon was 8.1 inches.

The heaviest rain in the memory of inhabitants fell at Ardmore. At noon, ten inches had fallen, but the downpour had virtually ceased.

A traveling family of tenant farmers was marooned when Bayou Creek, a small stream 12 miles west of Ardmore, went on a rampage. The seven members of the family were rescued by the Ardmore chief of police and an assistant after they had negotiated the stream with some difficulty in a rubber boat. The creek had become a mile wide river, with water from 35 to 40 feet deep in the center.

Basements in several Ardmore stores were filled with water. Heavy rains were also reported at Marietta and Healdton.

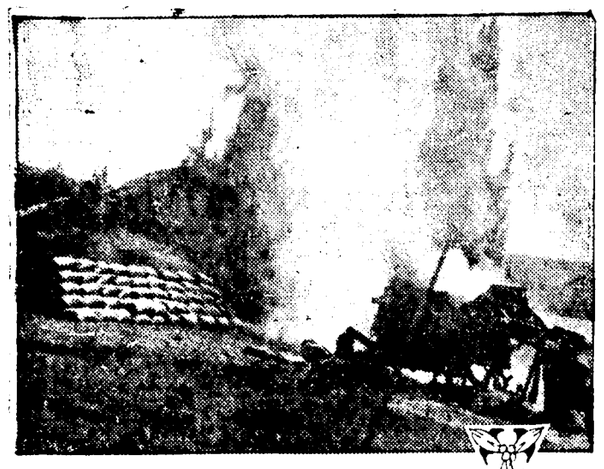
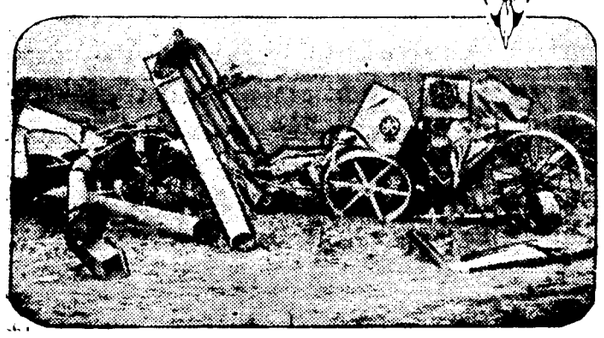
New Methods Reduce Heavy Losses From Explosion Of Dust





Mechanical improvements have helped to reduce costly explosions of grain dust at threshing time. Top—Dust explosion in Washington state. Below—Remains of threshing machine wrecked by explosion and fire in Idaho.

Once a half-million dollar farm hazard, grain dust explosion has been lowered in the past decade to a potential damage of from $15,000 to $75,000 a year, the United States Bureau of Chemistry avers.

The bulk of explosions occur in the Pacific Northwest, during the threshing season. Sometimes there is a loss of life, the separator is destroyed and large quantities of straw and grain are burned.

While a number of causes are assigned for dust explosion, greatest danger lies in the threshing of smutty wheat. Scientists advance the theory that small particles of smut, found more abundantly in fall wheat, become electrified when the kernels are broken up by the cylinder teeth.

Supporting the theory, investigation has shown that 76 per cent of the explosions originate back of the cylinder, or near it.

Explosions occur in separators of all types and sizes. Danger reaches a peak from 1 p. m. to 7 p. m., and is present particularly on hot, dry days conducive to electrostatic ignition. Sometimes friction sparks, caused by gravel, flint or metal striking the cylinder knives, are responsible for explosions.

It generally is conceded that danger exists chiefly when grain dust is dry, suspended in the atmosphere, and so diffused that the mixture of dust and air will ignite with sufficient rapidity and violence to propagate explosion. Frequently two detonations are heard. The first is sharp and quick, the second a loud roar, giving rise to belief that heat and flame of a probably light smut ignition stirs up sufficient dust on various parts of the separator to cause a second and more pronounced explosion of the type generally followed by serious fire.

Machinery wired in grounding scheme tests have operated through entire seasons without an explosion. Blow fans to keep the separators dust-free are in wide use.

"To prevent dust explosions," the Department of Agriculture says, "it is necessary either to eliminate the dust cloud, or the source of ignition, or to change the atmospheric conditions in such a way that combustion cannot occur."

Tests show that heavy charges of static electricity are present in many machines, not infrequently more than 50,000 volts.

BLACK IN DALLAS JAIL ADMITS PART IN SUNDAY MURDER

By Associated Press.

Dallas, Texas, July 12.—Willie Robinson, negro, who is claimed to have placed his "mark" on a written confession of participation in the slaying of J. C. Terrell, farmer, who lived near Justin, Sunday night, is in Dallas county jail today seriously wounded from officers' bullets, and a posse of 100 men is combing the hills around Haslett, Tarrant county, for another negro implicated by Robinson's statements.

Robinson, who told officers he escaped from the Ramsey state prison farm last September, where he was serving a 50-year robbery sentence from Georgetown, Williamson county, was almost riddled by bullets from the guns of Benton County Deputy Sheriffs McCormick and Williams early this morning.

Officers Find Negro.

McCormick and Williams hid at Blue Mount crossing, near Haslett and Robinson came out from the brush, apparently waiting to catch a train. According to the officers the negro saw them, drew a gun and backed about 30 feet, then turned to run. When he did so, the officers fired with pistol and shotgun, numerous bullets taking effect.

In a written statement typed by County Attorney Elbert Hooper and on which the negro is said to have placed his "mark," being unable to write, Robinson is claimed to have said that he and another negro did the slaying, the other, he claimed, having actually fired the shots which took Terrell's life. Robinson described his companion as named Butler or Buckner and being dressed in brown trousers with blue shirt.

Robinson, after he was shot, told the deputies that his companion intened coming the same route, by way of Blue Mount crossing.

A heavily armed posse is beating down the brush today for the negro.

Reports did not definitely establish what motive Robinson ascribed for the crime.

Murder Charges Filed.

Charges of murder were filed against Robinson today before Justice of the Peace Matthews in Denton.

Robinson stated in his purported confession that he was the negro who called at the Terrell home Sunday afternoon seeking work. After Terrell and his wife left for church, Robinson and his companion entered the house through a window and ransacked each room, according to the negro's statement. When they heard the Terrell automobile returning they left by the window through which they had entered.

While Robinson ran toward a woodpile, his companion went to the rear of the house, uttered an exclamation and fired upon Terrell, later following up the attack by hitting the farmer over the head with a four pound piece of concrete, the confession said.

SENATOR REED IS CAUSTIC AGAINST REPUBLICAN REGIME

By Associated Press.

Atlanta, Ga., July 12.—Addressing a joint session of the Georgia Legislature here today, Senator James A. Reed of Missouri ascribed "whatever there is of prosperity today" to the federal reserve banking system, and gave the Democratic party the credit for the origin and perfection of the system.

The Senator disputed "the great boast of the present administration that it has produced a condition of prosperity' 'and stated that no government can produce wealth.

Wealth is said to be produced by the people under given favorable conditions. Speaking of the prosperity claim, Senator Reed stated that the present administration was run for and by the wealthy class. He devoted a large part of his address to reviewing incidents of scandal and corrupt use of money in politics for many years past.

A Tribute of Respect to Lt. J. Thad Johnson.

It grieved me very much to read of the tragic and untimely death of Lt. J. Thad Johnson which occurred a few days ago at Ottawa, Canada. We knew him when he was in school in Scranton Academy in Eastland County. He and my son were members of the same debating society. He and my daughter, Allie, were in the graduating class in 1912. He was a good student and a good boy dominated by high ideals. He became a Presbyterian member and was pastor of a church at Lamesa for awhile. He afterwards attended Trinity University at Waxahachie and I think graduated from that institution. While in that school he made us a very pleasant and much enjoyed visit. His purpose at that time was to take a theological course in Princeton. I encouraged him to do so. I suppose the war somewhat changed his program.

That was an excellent character. I notice in the account of his death no mention was made of his people. His father and mother were living in Eastland county when we knew him. He had one sister. These are all we knew of. His sister went to school to my daughter and was a good student.

Goodbye, Thad. I hope to meet thee again where no accidents happen.

H. P. SHRADER.

Mrs. L. M. Marshall, who has been seriously ill at the Navarro County Hospital, is reported steadily improving.

CORNELIA S. ADAIR

By Associated Press.

Seattle, July 12.—From the classroom, which has been the seat of her scholastic influence, Miss Cornelia S. Adair of Richmond, Va., ascended to leadership over her fellow-teachers throughout the United States.

Miss Adair was elected president of the National Education association at its convention here. She has been chairman of the education committee of the National League of Women Voters.

MAN'S WINDPIPE SEVERED WHEN HE DROPPED REVOLVER

Dodo Martinez, age 63, was brought to the Corsicana Hospital and Clinic Monday afternoon suffering from a bullet wound in the neck which had severed his wind-pipe and it was necessary to operate and insert a tube so that he could bheathe. He was in a very critical condition Tuesday afternoon, and attending physicians feared that pneumonia had set in.

According to details supplied by those accompanying Martinez, he was engaged in moving some clothing from one closet to another, and one load of clothes contained a gun which was discharged when the clothes were dropped, the bullet striking him on one side or the neck and passing through, coming out on the opposite side.

Martinez was employed in the lignite mines at Malakoff.

MANY PICKERS TO BE NEEDED ON FARMS IN FALL SEASON

Fort Worth, Texas, July 12.—Approximately 300,000 persons who do not live on farms will be needed to pick the cotton expected to be grown on Texas cotton farms this year, C. W. Woodman, director of the United States Farm Labor Bureau office, said today.

Picking will be in full blast by next week in the South Texas areas where farmers are said to be already offering 75 cents a hundred pounds to pickers. Prospective pickers, especially those with families are warned, however, to consult with the bureau before going to either South Texas or the Rio Grande Valley reggion in order that they may be sent to areas that really need their services.

FAILURE TO SECURE JURORS CAUSE FOR POSTPONING CASE

By Associated Press.

San Marcos, Texas, July 12.—Inability to obtain a jury here because of preconceived conclusions at noon today resulted in another transfer of the trial of Rebecca Bradley Rogers, young Texas University student, charged with holding up and robbing the Farmers' National Bank at Buda, Texas, last December.

The case was sent to LaGrange, Fayette county, and set for December 5, after 19 veniremen were examined without obtaining a single juror.

The change of venue followed the refusal yesterday of Judge M. C. Jeffrey to grant a continuance on the defense plea that Dr. C. W. Ramsdell, material defense witness, was not available.

Interrogation of veniremen from the panel of 92 began when court opened at 9 o'clock. A tilt between the court, State and defense over the right to question veniremen on their attitude toward inflicting the death penalty on a woman enlivened the early proceedings.

Preconceived Opinions.

When nineteen veniremen had disqualified on "pre-conceived opinions" Judge Jeffrey and State and defense went into conference. At 12 o'clock the court announced that change of venue had been decided upon.

A disappointed crowd filed from tthe court room as Mrs. Rogers said: "I'm sorry I made Otis start from Carlsbad. He will be here this afternoon and I'll return with him tonight, as I have a job there."

Otis Rogers is her husband.

After making a new bond of $5,000, signed by Tom Johnson and Judge R. E. Cofer, Becky, accompanied by her mother and attorneys, left in an automobile for Austin. There she expects to join her husband.

AGED CONFEDERATE VETERAN DIED LATE MONDAY AFTERNOON

J. C. Easterwood, aged 82 years, six months and six days, Confederate veteran, died at his home in the Phillips Chapel community Monday afternoon at 6 o'clock following an illness of about a week. Funeral services were held at Phillips Chapel Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and the remains were forwarded to Temple, Texas, for interment Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. M. Moran, Baptist minister, of Hubbard.

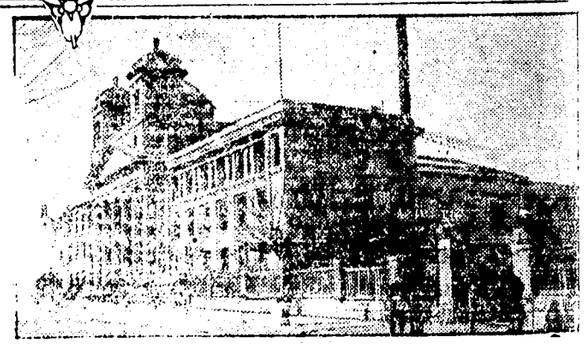
Mr. Easterwood was born in Alabama but moved to Texas in 1900. He served during the Civil War under Generals Forrest and Robert E. Lee.

Surviving are four sons, L. F. Easterwood, Corsicana, Rt. 5; M. L. Easterwood, Temple; M. J. Easterwood and E. G. Easterwood, both of Waco; two daughters, Mrs. Milenda Lou Boucher, Mississippi; Mrs. Ada Love, Corsicana.

Welcome Break At Kansas City

Kansas City, July 13.—A welcome break in the hot weather that has prevailed in the middle west for a week or more came early today with refreshing rains that will be of much benefit to crops. Precipitation was reported in various parts of Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas.

Peanut Competition for U. S. Results When Chinese Fight



During civil war in China, the native peanut industry is unmolested by bandits, who are busy fighting.

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 11.—When China's warring sabres clash it means more peanut competition for the southern United States.

During lulls in civil strife brigands raid the peanut trains. But they are in the army now. Export lanes are open, and again the Chinese peanut millions flood the United States market, federal data shows.

Tariff and shipping charges are offset by low production cost. The military may commandeer the railways, but the Chinese has his river boat, his wheelbarrow and his mule. He'll make port, if the bandits sojourn elsewhere.

Already China has sent to Pacific ports of America 50 per cent more peanuts than in a corresponding period last year. Still further increased imports are predicted.

In 1926 peanut importation reached 41,722,875 pounds, and peanut oil totaled 7,962, 875 pounds. However, the government is informed of increased acreage in southeast Virginia, and there is no immediate knowledge that prospective hot competition with China has impaired peanut enterprise in the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama, Texas, Tennessee, Florida, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

These states, utilizing a total of 852,000 acres, produced 626,866,000 pounds of peanuts in 1926. Virginia, Georgia and North Carolina led, with Alabama and Texas close behind. Georgia was first, with 211,000 acres, but North Carolina topped the list in yield, 980 pounds per acre for a total of 190,120,000 pounds.

The provinces of Shantung and Chihili, in northwest China proper supply the bulk of imports. They produce the large podded type used chiefly for oil, peanut butter and roasting. While huge quantities are used for salting and in the manufacture of candy, the small podded, or Spanish type, has a higher average use as a confection.

Georgia and Alabama specialize in the small podded variety, the country producing 50 per cent of the peanuts used by American confectioneries. Valencia, in Spain and Java ship comparatively small quantities to the United States. The Spanish type peanuts are always shelled for the market and usually sell at a higher price than the large podded peanut of Virginia.

STATE TAX SURVEY COMMISSION URGES SUPPORT OF AMENDMENT TO CONSTITUTION OF TEXAS

By Associated Press.

Austin, Texas, July 12.—Texas' present tax system as applied to visible property "particularly farms, ranches and homes," is "unjust and discriminatory," the "burden is excessive and relief must be had," the State Tax Survey Commisison declared today in a resolution adopted at the close of a two day session, urging the voters' support of the proposed constitutional amendment to separate the objects of taxation and abolish the State tax on visible property.

The amendment, by Representative J. W. Stevenson of Victoria, one of the commission members, is to be voted on August 1, along with three others adopted by the Fortieth legislature which created the commission to recommend a more equitable system of taxation.

Preliminary reports made by six sub-committees assigned to study of 19 subjects of taxation were insufficient, the commission said, to inspire any "definite conclusions as to methods of equalizing tax burdens."

"The commission can definitely and positively say," however, the resolution continued, "that the present tax system as to real estate, and in fact, as to all visible property, is unjust and discriminatory in its application."

Another meeting of the committee will be held the second Monday in August.

Texas Heat Wave Broken Wednesday

Dallas, Texas, July 13.—A welcome relief from a heat wave which has hung over the state was afforded in West and East Texas today as scattered showers were reported.

Local thunder showers for the northwestern portion of East Texas and all of West Texas was the United States weather bureau forecast.

PRIMITIVE POTTERY COLLECTION FOUND OLD FUNERAL MOUND

Special to the Sun.

Austin, Texas, July 13.—From a funeral mound worn away by the shifting course of the Red River there has recently come to the University of Texas a collection of fifteen pieces of primitive pottery. The collection was bought by J. E. Pearce, professor of anthropology of the University, who learned of it through a northern collector who had tried to buy the pottery for a museum. The owner, Mrs. Jennie Watson Smith of Clarksville, refused to sell the collection, however, to the northern buyer as she was anxious to have the speciments remain in Texas.

The Watson Collection, as the pottery will be known, is now being kept in a class room at the University, pending a time when Texas will have a permanent state museum for the housing of this an similar collections.

The pottery along with a human skull was found in Red River County on the S. S. Watson place at the mouth of Pecan Bayou. There were undoubtedly more remains which were washed away by the stream, said Mr. Pearce, for the funeral mound covered at least half an acre and was twenty-five to thirty feet high.

In his estimate as to the age of the collection, Mr. Pearce said that no doubt the vessels were made by the ancestors of the Caddo Indians of East Texas who were makers of remarkably good pottery. The skull evidently came from the upper portion of the mound and represents a later burial than the pieces of pottery. The skull is at an extreme estimate probably 500 years old, in the opinion of Mr. Pearce.

A funeral mound was a custom of many primitive people, said Mr. Pearce. It was a monument to the dead and their spirits. These mounds date back to an indefinite time. They were still being made by Indians in the lower Mississippi valley when the white people came and the primitive people had been making them for many years prior to that time.

Much information regarding primitive man can be obtained by the archaeologist who studies the remains to be found in funeral mounds, said Mr. Pearce. The skull found in the Watson collection, for instance, he said, bears a depression, showing where a band had been placed about the head when the individual was an infant to shape the head to conform to the primitive peoples' idea of personal beauty. The pottery of the collection shows the intelligence of the maker as to the practical use of the vessel as well as the sense of beauty. Fine red clay smeared over the surface of several of the vessels was an attempt to make them waterproof and most of the pieces bear intricate patterns, well-balanced and artistic in their design.

RAILWAY MAN IS NOT OPTIMISTIC OVER COTTON PRICE

By Associated Press.

Dallas, Texas, July 13.—King Cotton, rocking under the impact of the low price blow, is the subject of a second alarm by R. C. Andrews, Dallas, district manager of the American Railway Association in his fiscal year report on the state's agricultural outlook.

"Cotton exports so far this season have exceeded the exports of last year by about 3,000,000 bales and stocks on hand June 30, close of the fiscal year, around 700,000 bales more than a year ago, notwithstanding the very heavy production last year," he said. He predicted production in the four Southwestern States will be about 7,000,000 bales this year.

"Unless sales this season are restricted to current requirements there probably will be nothing to sustain even present price levels.

"The difference between 16 and 20 cnts per pound this season would amount to not less than $140,000,000 in our four southwestern states and would affect favorably or unfavorably the buying power of the producers that much. Therefore, it is a matter of considerable concern to all industry whether this season's crop is dumped on the market in excess of consumptive needs. If last year's crop had been marketed properly, the producers in these four states would have profited to the extent of $200,000,000. And that lesson should not be forgotten this season.

"General rains during the last half of June provided sufficient moisture in those sections needing it; but continued rains in many sections are causing alarm because of boll weevil infestation. Picking also has been delayed in extreme Southwest Texas; the army worm has appeared in southern sections and indications point to heavy boll worm activity in other sections. Cultivation in some districts has been retarded because of wet fields."

The cotton situation as shown by Andrew's report, giving receipts and exports for the years 1926-27 respectively: (in bales)

Hints for the Farm

Furnished by the DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

The use of ear tags is one of the popular methods of marking purebred cattle. Where the ears are light in color the tatoo method is also popular. A combination of the two is more satisfactory. Notching the ears disfigures the animal and never should be practiced.

Ordinarily corn should be harvested for the silo about a week or ten days before it would be cut for shocking; that is, when about 90 per cent of the kernels are dented and at least 75 per cent of the kernels are hardened so that no milk can be squeezed out. At that time the lower leaves on the stalk are turning brown and the green corn fodder contains about 65 or 70 per cent of moisture, which is suficient for silage.

The silage made from corn containing moisture enough for proper preservation is more palatable than that made from corn so mature as to require the addition of water.

Windbreaks for crop protection should be located so as to protect the crop from the most damaging winds, usually summer winds. As efficient windbreaks exert their influence along the land surface to a distance of from 15 to 20 times their height, the intervals between them should be about 15 or 20 times the height of trees at their maturity.

The Federal Bureau of Agricultural Economics is sudying markeing problems and making surveys indicating the prospects of various cooperative marketing projects. It is examining the causes of success and failure in cooperation, helping organizations to plan wise merchandising policies, popularizing the use of uniform and up-to-date accounting systems and office records among cooperative associations, analyzing marketing operations to reveal their strong and weak spots and aiding cooperatives to extend their markets at home and abroad.

Studies made by the Bureau of Dairy Industry on more than 100,000 records of individual cows in cow-testing associations show that cows producing 4,000 pounds of milk per year yielded an average income of $50.55 over costs of feed, whereas those producing 7,000 pounds per year yielded an average income of $89.96 over cost of feed. It required a $16 increase in the feed bill for higher producing cows, but this $16 investment returned an additional increase of $39.41 in income over feed.

When cutting out a garment follow the edge of the pattern exactly, since most patterns allow for seams. Otherwise, when basted, the garment will be difficult to fit.

To remove grass stains, hot water and soap may be successful if the material is washable. Remaining traces on white cottons or linens may be bleached out with Javelle water or potassium permanganate. Fabrics that may be injured by water should be sponged with denatured or wood alcohol.

Vinegar can be made from any fruit, or from any material which contains enough sugar and is in no way objectionable. Enough fruit to make all the vinegar for a year's supply is wasted in many homes. Surplus or inferior grades of fruit not desired for immediate use of canning, often may be turned into vinegar at a nominal cost.

Junkets, sherbets, custards, ice cream and many kinds of nutritious puddings are among the possible milk desserts. Old-fashioned creamy rice pudding, taploca, gelatin desserts such as Spanish and Bavarian creams, blanc mange and cornstarch puddings with different flavors are all easy to make and are well liked.

Carpet beetles, which do damage similar to that by clothes moths, may be exterminated with napthalene flake, paradichlorobenzene, or camphor, placed in trunks, chests or closets that are not often opened. If the beetles are beneath carpets or rugs, in piano felts, upholstered furniture or closets in daily use, these substances are of little value. The house as a whole should be fumigated with hydocyanic-acid gas, carbon disulphid, or carbon tetrachlorid.

Thousand Island dressing is a mayonnaise dressing to which chopped, highly flavored materials are added. There is no rule about what these finely chopped ingredients shall be. Some suggestions are hard cheese, hard cooked eggs, pickle, olives, radishes, celery, green peppers, pimentos capers and onions. As many as six such ingredients may be combined, according to taste and supply at hand.

Bluing water should be made just before it is used. If allowed to stand, it is likely to streak the clothes. Shade tests are made by dipping a small garment and then holding it to the light, or by holding a little of the water in the hollow of the hand. Heavy fabrics require more bluing than thin ones. All bluing should be stirred occasionally while in use. Only a few pieces are blued at a time, and are not left to soak in the bluing water.

Shortcakes need not be abandoned when the strawberry season is over. Serve raspberry shortcakes, or any other berries in season, and peach shortcake with whipped cream when the materials are available.

NOT GUILTY PLEAS ENTERED BY THREE CHARGED IN MURDER

By Associated Press.

Franklin, La., July 13.—Pleas of not guilty were entered by the three defendants charged with the murder of James Lebouef, Morgan City business man, upon their arraignment in Criminal Court here today.

The pleas were made by James R. Parkinson, attorney for the three, after he had objected to the arraignment of Mrs. Ada Lebouef, widow of the slain man; Dr. Dreher physician ,and her alleged lover, and James Beadle, trapper, whom they accuse of the actual killing.

Mr. Pankerson argued that insufficient time had been granted for him to prepare motions, but the move for further time was refused by Judge James Simon.

After the reading of the indictments, the three stood before the judge while their counsel entered pleas.

Following the pleading, Mr. Parkerson requested Judge Simon to rescind his order for a trial to begin on July 25 on the ground that he needed further time to prepare their defense. This motion was also overruled.

The three defendants were seated in different sections of the court room and neither Mrs. Lebouef nor the physician glanced toward the other.

Principal Exchange Words.

As they left the court room, however, Dr. Dreher encountered the woman whose love affair with him was alleged to have led to the murder of her husband. Meeting for a moment in the corridor of the jail as they passed back to the cell, the physician exchanged a few words with her.

"Ada," he said, "don't get nervous; brace up."

"All right, Doc," she answered.

They passed on to their cells.

Previously, Dr. Dreher and Beadle had shaken hands when they met in the jail on their way to the court room.

MANY TOWNS HAVE DECLARED HOLIDAY TO ENTERTAIN CAL

By Associated Press.

Rapid City, S. D., July 13.— A dozen towns in Wyoming, Nebraska and South Dakota have proclaimed next Saturday a holiday for the Tri-State Farmers' picnic at Ardmore, S. D., which will be attended by President and Mrs. Coolidge.

More than 10,000 farmers from the three States, it is estimated, will gather under the trees near the government experiment station, eat their dinners and have a good time. Road workers have been busy on all highways leading to Ardmore and in that little town near the Nebraska-Wyoming border preparations for the big day are in full swing.

The President is especially anxious to investigate the government station at Ardmore which is experimenting in "dry farming." His trip includes a tour of the stables as well as of the land where dry farming crops are under cultivation.

A brand new Chevrolet roadster, with a dealer's license attached, which was stolen out of Bremond on July 11th, was recovered in Corsicana by Officer Griffin. The car was found at the corner of Seventh avenue and Ninth street. It was not occupied by anyone at the time of its recovery.

College Boys Make Good Harvest Hands

By Associated Press.

Fort Worth, Texas July 13.—The college boy, contrary to belief in some circles, is a hard worker when turned loose in a cutover wheat field with a pitchfork and a bundle wagon as inspiration, C. W. Woodman, assistant director of the United States Farm Labor Bureau here, believes.

Woodman draws his opinion from the contract he has annually with some 2,400 college men who appear at his office in the spring seeking employment in harvest fields.

"Most of the boys are athletes who want to work in the harvest fields to harden their muscles" Woodman said. "They throw themselves into harvest work with the same enthusiasm they play their games, and are popular with farmers and thresher bosses as a result. As a rule, they do not burn out as quickly as the supposedly hardened men."

This year, however, college men were warned away from Texas because of the general labor depression existing in the southwestern wheat fields, due to inclement weather, late and uncertain season, the influx of refugees from the Mississippi river region, and the growing use of the combine.

With few exceptions, the most satisfactory proportions for making jelly are three-fourths of a cup of sugar to one cup of fruit juice.

Peaches may be canned by the water bath method. A sirup made from one cup of sugar to each two or three cups of water is used, according to the sweetness of the fruit. Put in one cracked peach pit for each quart of sirup and strain. Peel the peaches, cut in half, discard the pits, and pack in jars. Fill containers with boiling sirup. Process quart and pint jars 25 minutes if the fruit is fairly firm and hard; 20 minutes if it is ripe and tender. No. 2 and No. 3 tin cans are processed 15 minutes.

Heels that are too narrow, too high, or incorrectly pitched, frequently cause weakened ankles, a wobbly walk, strained muscles, serious sprains and other injuries incident to slipping, twisting, and falling. The weight of the body is thrown upon the toes, if the feet are jammed into the fore part of the shoe, causing bruises, corns, weakened and crushed arches, and bent toes.

When fitting a garment try the seams in different positions, especially those of the shoulder. Study the figure to find the position which will emphasize the best features and conceal those which are not so good. It is better to put attention on fitting the figure than on keeping the lines of the pattern.

Chops of any kind should be finished after everything else is cooked and dished for the meal. After they are done to a turn chops cannot be kept warm successfully.

Stuffed pepper, celery, fried eggplant, string beans, and a bit of pickle to furnish the necessary acid for rounding off a dinner, is recommended as a good plate combination.

To be kept safe, woolen clothes or furs, stored over the summer in cedar chests, should be scrupulously clean when put away. It is important to remove all spots and to brush, beat and sun thoroughly. The cedar chest can be relied upon to kill young larvae that hatch, but not half grown worms. The described treatment is necessary since minute moth eggs, or small larvae, already may be in the clothing.

Always iron with the thread of the goods and iron until the garment is dry, otherwise it will pucker. Shiny gloss on hems, tucks or seams can be removed by moistening a piece of cheese cloth with clear water, wringing it dry and wiping over the shiny surface with light, rapid stroke.

If sun-suits for children are made with a semi-transparent top through which the sun rays can penetrate, they will get ultra-violet light over a considerable portion of their bodies. White cotton voile, bobbinet, and cross-barred dimity are good materials for such clothing.

ATTORNEY GENERAL OF STATE OF ALABAMA CALLS ON HEAD OF KLAN MAKE FLOGGERS KNOWN

By Associated Press.

Montgomery, Ala., July 12.—Requesting James Esdale of Birmingham, head of the Ku Klux Klan of Alabama, to make known the names of the men who participated in the recent flogging of a youth at Oneonta, State Attorney General Charles C. McCall has [illegible] the members of the Klan Klaverns at Oneonta and Talladega with violating "the principles of law, order and justice." Which he understood the organization claimed to uphold.

In a letter to Mr. Esdale the attorney general said that the State of Alabama has knowledge that members of the Klan at Oneonta are responsible for the beating of a pine of Jeff Calloway, 16-year-old orphan of Oneonta.

He asked Mr. Esdale as grand [illegible] of the order in Alabama to [illegible] the facts and to make public the names of those participating.

Mr. Esdale at Birmingham last night refused to comment.

The flogging of Calloway was one of three similar cases of action by hooded men in Alabama [illegible] past two weeks. Calloway [illegible] recovered sufficiently to [illegible] his work on a farm near [illegible]. Mrs. Bertha A. The State Legislature is to convene at the present session a bill to ban wearing of masks in Alabama except for legitimate amusement purposes.

INDUCEMENTS TO ENLIST IN U. S. AIR SERVICES

Washington, July 13.—Army officers were urged today by the War Department to apply for transfer to the air corps because of "the promising future of aviation in general and of the army air corps in particular."

The expansion of the air corps will increase its commissioned personnel to 1,650 and the department is making a special effort to get from other branches of the army men qualified to fill some of the vacancies after having been trained to fly.

BRITISH DELEGATE DISCUSSES CRUISER MATTER WITH GIBSON

By Associated Press.

Geneva, July 12.—Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, one of the British delegates at the naval conference, called on Hugh Gibson, America's chief representative today for a further discussion of the new British proposal. This proposal fixes the maximum figure of 400,000 tons for cruisers but is accompanied by the condition that large size cruisers will be reduced to the minimum number.

It is now understood that the British would hope to keep within the above maximum tonnage up to 1934, or even 1936. They are unable to commit themselves further, however, and even indicate that their building programs would probably bring the tonage up much higher by 1942.

The naval experts met until early morning trying to figure out the replacement effects of the British plan.

The tense atmosphere of the conference continued, but the cause of the cruiser deadlock has not yet been discovered.

Naval Conference Still in Trouble

By Associatd Press.

Geneva, July 12.—"We are in a bunker; nothing but a niblick can save us," was the golfing metaphor employed today by a Japanese member of the committee which has been charged with going over the new British proposals for cruiser limitation now before the three power naval conference.

This committee worked well into the night trying to approach the problem from some new angle, but finally separated, agreeing to have another try today.

While finding a number of conciliatory suggestions in the British proposals, the Americans doubt whether they will really be efficacious in the direction of effective limitation if they only extend to 1931, as suggested. Such a plan, the Americans believe, entails the possibility that the "lid may be off" after 1931 for a renewed race in cruiser construction.

As announced the British plan embodies the reaching of the American maximum total of 400,000 tons for cruisers, provided the United States and Great Britain agree to a limit the number of 10,000 ton cruisers to about ten.

British Want Small Cruisers.

The British hold that if only a small part of the tonnage were used for larger cruisers, it would be possible for Great Britain to have enough left for the fleet of small cruisers which she contends is necessary, because of the far flung nature of the empire.

The Japanese are chary of the promise that 400,000 tons would be the total figure for each of the two-five-five ratio powers. This would bring the Japanese three plus a fraction to considerably more than desired in these days when stringent economy is the watchword at Tokyo.

At any rate the tension that prevailed over the wek-end had disappeared to a large extent today and all three camps were displaying an earnest good will to arrive at some satisfactory conclusion as speedily as possible.

What will be the American attitude if the British insist on limiting to ten the number of 10,000 ton cruisers has not been divulged, but it is generally believed the Americans cannot easily agree to this.

It has been made clear all along by the representatives of the United States that their country requires a considerable fleet of the larger cruisers because of the long distances to be covered without naval bass both on the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

President Believes Success Will Come

By Associated Press.

Rapid City, S. D., July 13.—Due deliberations will solve the cruiser strength problem which has been worrying the naval armaments conference at Geneva in the opinion of President Coolidge.

Still optimistic over the outcome of the parley, Mr. Coolidge is placing considerable hope in the pending plenary conference. At this get-together, he feels that Great Britain, Japan and this country will be able to discuss more fully their difficulties over the cruisers.

Meanwhile the President is represented as believing the conference is making progress despite the long discussions which has developed America's proposed strict restriction of cruiser construction.

EYE-WITNESS HAS ARRIVED BY PLANE FROM QUAKE AREA

By Associated Press

Cairo, Egypt, July 12.—An eye-witness who arrived here today by airplane from Transjordania said that 300 persons were believed to have been killed in yesterday's earthquake.

At Naan, Arabia, the eye-witness said that most of the houses were damaged or had collapsed completely, while a mosque in the course of erection was seriously damaged.

The movements of the earth lasted forty seconds and were visible in the surrounding lava beds, the witness said, describing the effect as terrifying.

Many persons were killed at Amman, Palestine, the witness said, while others were killed at Rudd and Ramleh as well as in various villages in Transpordania.

Desert Bedouins everywhere appeared terrified by the earth movement.

While the earthquake was felt in Cairo, no damage was reported.

Casualties From Quake Increase

By Associated Press.

Jerusalem, July 12.—Latest official reports from Neblus, which is 30 miles north of Jerusalem, give earthquake casualties of 62 dead and 250 injured. At Ramleh, 12 persons were killed and 25 injured, while at Ludd 30 persons were injured.

The report from Nablus stated that most of the casualties took place when a bazaar collapsed. Work of recovering the bodies was begun immediately.

Revised figures from the city of Ludd showed that 30 persons had been killed and 70 injured there.

Four persons were killed at Hebron.

The towns of Gaza, Acre and Beersheba are intact, but Safad and Tiberias were slightly affected.

Casualties occurred in more than twenty towns and villages.

The air force was used extensively at Ramlen and Ludd and rendered splendid service, said the report.

Hebrew University Buildings Wrecked

By Associated Press.

New York, July 12.—The Institute of Jewish Studies established through the generosity of American Jews, and the department of chemistry, suffered most when the Hebrew University building and the Government House on the Count of Olives were shaken during the earthquake yesterday, say dispitches to the Jewish Telegraph Agency.

The buildings of the two institutions of the Hebrew University were badly cracked and experimental machinery in the chemistry department was destroyed.

Reports received here today from Tel Aviv, Haifa and Tiberias confirm previous messages that these cities were not affected by the shock.

Heavy Destruction Wrought by Quake

By Associated Press.

Jerusalem, July 12.—The earthquake which terrified inhabitants of Jerusalem yesterday afternoon and wrought destruction there and in many parts of Palestine and Transjordania, while not on as great a scale as some similar tragedies in the Holy Land in the past, took a considerable toll of lives and caused widespread damage.

An incomplete casualty list embracing the Jerusalem district placed the dead at twenty-six and the injured at 30. Officials fear that when reports are received from outlying places the death roll will reach a large figure.

In Jerusalem itself, the material damage was extensive. The small dome of the Holy Sepulchre church, occupying a site which has been looked upon as sacred for many centuries, was badly cracked. Only one death is recorded in the city proper, that of a servant at Government House. Twelve persons are known to have been injured.

Jersualem Has Appearance of Seige

By Associated Press.

Jerusalem, July 12.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—The old city this morning had the appearance of having passed through a military seige as a result of yesterday's earthquake.

The streets were filled with crowds, the people hesitating to enter the houses in fear of a recurrence of the earthquake and possible collapse caused by a weakening of the foundations. As the hours passed, however, a calm atmosphere was returning to the "City of Peace."

A scientific record of the earthquake, made by seismographic apparatus in Telaviv, shows that the earthquake moved from north to south.

The Allenby bridge was damaged at both ends. The Greek Catholic church of the Holy Sepulchre has been declared unsafe because of the cracks in the walls. The roof of the chemical laboratory of the Hebrew university in Mount of Olives collapsed.

The Government House, located on the Mount of Olives, was badly damaged. The rooms of the high commissioner, Lord Plumer, and Lady Plumer, who are now on vacation in England, were wrecked. This building was also declared unsafe by the authorities. One of the three Indian women who were killed in a hotel in Jericho were identified as the wife of Sir Abdul Raouff. Her companion perished with her.

Samuel Anoints David

1 Sam 16: 4-13

1. Sam. 16: 4. And Samuel did that which Jehovah spake, and came to Bethlehem. And the elders of the city came to meet him trembling, and said, Comest thou peaceably?

5. And he said, Peaceably; I am come to sacrifice unto Jehovah: sanctify yourselves, and come with me to the sacrifice. And he sanctified Jesse and his sons, and called them to the sacrifice.

6. And it came to pass, when they were come, that he looked on Eliab, and said, Surely Jehovah's anointed is before him.

7. But Jehovah said unto Samuel, Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have rejected him: for Jehovah seeth not as man seeth, for man looketh on the outward appearance, but Jehovah looketh on the heart.

8. Then Jesse called Abinidab, and made him pass before Samuel. And he said, Neither has Jehovah chosen this.

9. The Jesse made Shammah to pass by. And he said, Neither hath Jehovah chosen this.

10. And Jesse made seven of his sons to pass before Samuel. And Samuel said unto Jesse, Jehovah hath not chosen these.

11. And Samuel said unto Jesse, Are here all thy children? And he said, There remaineth yet the youngest, and behold, he is keeping the sheep. And Samuel said unto Jesse, Send and fetch him; for we will not sit down till he cometh hither.

12. And he sent, and brought him in. Now he was ruddy, and withall of a beautiful countenance, and goodly to look upon. And Jehovah said, Arise, anoint him; for this is he.

13. Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and anointed him in the midst of his brethren; and the Spirit of Jehovah came mightily upon David from that day forward. So Samuel rose up, and went to Ramah.

Golden Text:—Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an example to them that believe, in word, in manner of life, in love, in faith, in purity.—1 Tim. 4:12.

Is it always possible to know right from wrong.

Is it ever right to compromise with what we know to be wrong to accomplish what we know to be right?

Are we ever justified in condoning in our friends what we would condemn in those we do not like?

One of the hardest things which has come into my life is to take a stand against friends. In the newspaper business this faces every editor. In an experience of thirty years I have opposed men in one campaign who had been on my side just a few years before and have supported men who were intensely hostile just a little while ago, but it is no fun and I hate to do it.

One of the talents of the politician is loyalty to his friends. Many a promising career has been ruined by aspiring men because they permitted friendship to interfere with what they knew they ought to do. When a man reaches authority and power he must have a very strong character indeed if he can use that power regardless of the entanglements of political association.

I have come to believe that the best politics in the world is honest politics. I know men will sneer and will say there is no such thing as honest politics and I know that they are wrong. Our people have the control of government by their votes; they may seem to be careless and negligent and yet when a government gets so rotten and incompetent that it is a stench it is always overthrown.

History records many stories about a father in authority who punished his own son just as if he were a stranger. It was a hard thing to do, yet it was the very best politics in the world. I believe the best politics in an office holder is to forget politics entirely and to fly out a straight course and follow it regardless of consequences.

At this point I am reminded by someone that this is supposed to be a Bible editorial and a discussion of a religious subject. I know of nothing in religion more important than the making of a character able to stand for the right in politics, and in the every day affairs of business. Our special text is the story of a king who failed and lost his kingdom, his life and the political succession.

Saul was the first king of Israel. I am unable to figure from the Bible story of from Josephus or from other boks available just why he failed or what he did. The theologians say that when Samuel under God's direction told Saul to make war on the Amalekites he also directed him to kill and destroy, to kill men, women and children and destroy property, even the cattle and the sheep. That Saul defeated his enemies, but captured and kept alive the king, Agag, and also saved the finest of the live stock. For this disobedience to a direct command Saul was informed that his kingdom was forfeit and Samuel, as the phophet and mouthpiece of God, selected another man of another family to be king.

None of us is quite able to understand the standards and the morals of the times of Saul. It was about a thousand years before Christ and the conception of God was not at all our conception. I do not pretend to know just what motivated Samuel to turn against his friend Saul, the man whom he himself had selected and inducted into office, the man for whom he had prayed and whose hands he had upheld for years. I am of the opinion that power went to Saul's head, that he became tyrannical and arbitrary, that he surrounded himself with luxury and took to himself all the kingly rights which he observed were taken by the kings of the nations about him and concluded that he was king because he was just about the smartest man in that section of the world and that God had nothing to do with it.

That is really the story told in the Bible, written in picture form for the understanding of a primitive people. They could understand how God would punish a king for disobeying orders even if they could not understand the reason for those orders. But even these people would not permit Saul to put to death his hero son, Jonathan, who disobeyed orders.

A few years ago I knew, and liked, a politician who held powerful office. His code was to reward his friends and supporters and to punish those who did not support him. He may never have heard the line coined by some newspaper headline writer "What is the constitution between friends" but that was his code. I really believe that he thought he was doing exactly right. I know that at one election he could not understand it at all when another man who stood firm for the right received more votes than he did himself. He could not understand why even the men he had favored voted against him and for his political enemy.

It is in my mind that Saul thought he was very badly mistreated, that Samuel had double-crossed him and that David was a usurper who used his power as a popular hero of battle to overthrow the king and take away the throne. I am sure that Saul was very bitter against the man who had made him king and we know that he tried hard to kill David.

We, as voters, face today in the United States the very proposition Saul faced. Next year we are to select a candidate for President of the United States. We are interested, we like a home grown candidate. Like Saul he may have saved Agag and we may if we listen a little, hear the bleating of the sheep and the lowing of the oxen.

Are we then to set aside the constitution as between friends and support our friend although such support is a violation of the principles which we profess to hold?

Saul lost his kingdom because he sought to nullify the constitution and to disobey the laws and refused to enforce laws because they seemed to him to be without sense or reason. Men in high places in the United states are doing just that very thing today. Saul thought it would be popular, he was probably honest about it, but he lost the next election.

The principles of honesty and right and good government today have not changed from those which Saul faced and under which men must operate.

The next President of the United States will not be chosen from among those who assume to announce the doctrine that the constitution means nothing among friends.—The Republic Syndicate.

PLENARY SESSION NAVAL CONFERENCE MEETS THURSDAY

By Associated Press.

Geneva, Switzerland, July 13.—The delegates to the tri-patite naval conference today decided to convoke a plenary session tomorrow at 3 p. m.

Tomorrow's plenary session was arranged, it was learned, in order that assurance can be given that the negotiations are continuing in the friendliest manner.

The atmosphere at Geneva today was most friendly, although a meeting which was held today did not result in any agreement on the cruiser problem, the Japanese insisting that they must have real limitation.

Meantime a Japanese suggestion that the United States and Great Britain negotiate a treaty between themselves has awakened no enthusiasm in American circles.

First of all, a treaty making 400,000 tons as the limit of cruiser strength of Great Britain and the United States is not to the liking of the American delegates because it means expansion of the American navy. Even if it were accepted as a compromise, it is believed that any bilateral convention would not achieve the objects for which the conference was originally convoked.

Moreover it is regarded as difficult for Great Britain and the United States to tie their hands by a treaty with Japan free to do what she wishes and to concentrate naval building in any one category as, for instance, submarines.

Japan Objects to Big Cruiser Limit

By Associated Press.

Geneva, July 13.—Outspoken opposition by the Japanese to any plan embodying a 400,000 ton cruiser program and the insinuation by Japanese that they might not sign an agreement if revision upward was to be the only result of the present parley today caused serious thinking among the other two delegations to the three-power naval limitation conference.

There were indications that, as a consequence of the Japanese stand, the British delegates were showing a disposition to lower their estimate for the total cruiser tonnage.

The Americans were not what might be termed unhappy over the self-assertion of Japan's right to be heard and seemed rather to welcome the drawing out of the negotiations. The Americans expect the result will be opportunity for public opinion in all three countries to crystalize in favor of what they call real limitation—the primary object of the present gathering. The Americans originally suggested a total cruiser strength of 250,000 to 300,000 tons, but to meet the desires of the British to some extent, raised the limit to 400,000 tons and are disposed to accept this figure only as a last resort.

Tomatoes Need Rotation

Soil experts advise that on farms where tomatoes are grown year after year a crop rotation that will keep the soil in good physical condition is extremely important. The rotation should not include such crops as potatoes, peppers and eggplant. They are related to the tomato and may spread infectious diseases.

It is necessary to use good ground, full of organic matter, to insure a successful tomato crop.

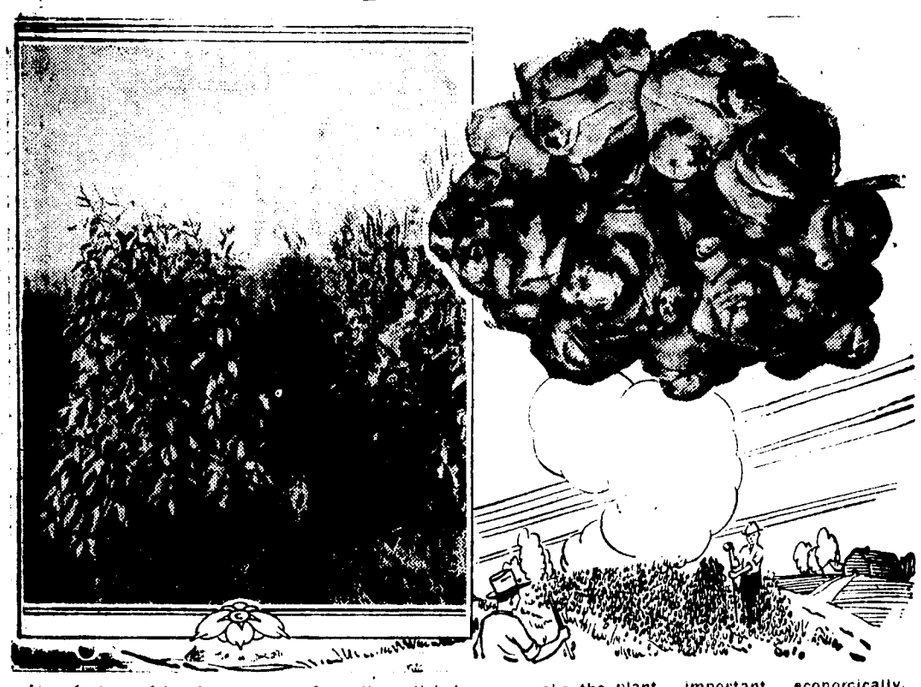
Levulose Discovery Promises New Crop in Hardy Artichoke



Manufacture of levulose, a sugar, from the artichoke may make the plant important economically. Above are shown a field of cultivated artichoke (left) and an excellent tuber for levulose extraction.

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 12.—Visualizing a new farm industry, federal scientists see broad fields of Helianthus Tuberosus, from the Dakotas to Texas, from the headlands of Maine to California.

The prospective crop is Jerusalem artichoke, rich in levulose, the sweetest of sugars.

"Farmers are ready," says the United States Bureau of Standard, "to launch intensive artichoke cultivation. Refineries are eager for commercial process and formula. Within the next three years government laboratories will likely have lowered manufacturing costs to a comparative basis, giving world markets a super-fine sugar and the American farmer a new basic crop in agriculture."

Dr. George K. Burgess, chief of the bureau of standards, considers the manufacture of levulose from the juice of artichoke tubers an accomplishment of extreme economic importance.

"For thirty years," he says, "the United States has sought favorable disposition of surplus corn and wheat. By crystallizing dextrose, the bureau of standards created the American corn sugar industry. Now, it proposes to reduce the wheat acreage by turning the Jerusalem artichoke from a common weed into a cash crop.

"The introduction of levulose into ordinary commerce would solve one of the problems of the supplementary food sources, inevitably to be sought as the needs of the steadily increasing national population approach the capacity of our agricultural resources to supply sustenance. Habits of the artichoke are different from those of sugar cane and sugar beets, making it possible to utilize those sections of the country not adapted to sucrose-producing plants.

"Factories in continental United States which manufacture sucrose are limited in their period of operation to the short season between maturing of beets or cane and the quickly following winter. They are thus idle during the major portion of the year, making it desirable that a supplementary industry based upon the levulose-producing plants, increase the serviceability of these factories.

"Moreover, the cane growing regions of the South would benefit from a crop rotation in which the root crops of the artichoke would alternate with sugar cane.

Importance of the artichoke as a nation-wide farm crop arises from the fact that its growth is not limited to any one section. It succeeds on any well-drained land with but slight attention. The artichoke is planted in the same way as potatoes and cultivated the same as corn. It is an extremely hardy plant.

Indigenous to the upper Mississippi valley, the Indian cultivated it with his corn and tobacco before the white man came. As a human food the artichoke offers variation from potatoes. Reports have come to the government that diabetics can eat levulose with no harmful results.

As a forage crop, either as tubers or plants, the artichoke competes with maize and may find its expansion outside the maize region.

Under favorable conditions, artichoke yield approximates 900 bushels, or about 20 tons per acre.

WELL IS FLOWING HIGH GRAVITY OIL AT CROSS PLAINS

Cross Plains, Texas, July 14.—Flowing 52 Baume gravity oil at the rate of 1,000 barrels a day, actual tank guage, through a gas separator, with a gas flow of 23,000,000 cubic feet, the Empire Gas and Fuel Company wildcat well on the Johnson land, eighteen miles west of Cross Plains, is being tested out after being shut in over a three weeks' period.

It is thought that not more than seven feet of the sand was drilled at the time of discovery. The first flow of gas showed but little oil, that later increased to a heavy spray estimated as high as 400 barrels when the well was shut in.

An oil separator was recently installed to test the amount of this oil output and when opened through this separator late Monday the well filled 400 barrels of available tankage in ten hours, and due to the small capacity of the separator, a large amount of oil was still going over with the gas.

The well is an absolute wildcat, more than seven miles from any production, and is the first wall to be drilled in that section of the county to the depth of this pay found at 4,140 feet.

LIGHTNING FIRES BIG OIL TANK ON OKLAHOMA FARM

Ardmore, Okla., July 14.—The Carter tank farm at Wilson, one of the largest oil storage fields in Southern Oklahoma, was endangered by fire today when lightning struck a 37,500 barrel tank of crude oil.

One hundred men were at work this morning, attempting to confine the blaze to the one tank.

Two shots were fired through the blazing tank with a cannon, in an effort to extinguish the fire. The flames were shooting 200 feet into the air and were visible for many miles.

STATE RAILROAD COMMISSION LOSES SUIT AGAINST T. P.

By Associated Press.

Austin, Texas, July 14.—The State Railroad Commission's petition to prevent the Texas and Pacific Railway Company from taking up rails, ties and other right-of-way fixtures of the Midland and Northwestern railway was disallowed in District Court here yesterday.

The Court sustained a demurrer to the petition, holding that the state has no right to interfere with the Texas and Pacific in removing property. Right of the Texas and Pacific to close its lien on the property was involved. The rails, ties and other fixtures had been bought in at a judicial sale by the Texas and Pacific after foreclosure.

PATHE NEWS EDITOR BELIEVES FRENCH FLIERS WILL BE FOUND DEEP GREAT CANADIAN WOODS

By Associated Press.

New York, July 14.—Ray L. Hall, editor of Pathe News, declared today he is convinced the French fliers, Nungesser and Coli, will be found either dead or alive in the Canadian wilds.

His statement was based on a report of two Pathe photographers, who are following two Indians in the woods north of Chicoutimi, Quebec to what their guides believe is the wreckage of an airplane.

Mr. Hall said his men had made a three week's preliminary survey in the North, returning to New York to report their findings. After hearing their reports, Mr. Hall sent them back to Quebec two weeks ago where they organized an expedition to penetrate the woods. They are traveling by canoe, he said, carrying an extra craft in which to bring back the fliers if they are found.

Report Finding of Wreckage.

By Associated Press.

St. Johns, N. F., July 14.—Wreckage believed to be that of the White Bird, flown by Nungesser and Coli from France in an attempt to reach New York, has been found in the interior, two hunters reported today.

The two hunters, who live in Flat Bay, on the west coast, brought out the report that about 40 miles inland in the wilderness they had sighted what looked like a large white boat. Railway officials at Saint Georges, to whom they reported their find, believing this might be the fuselage of the trans-Atlantic plane, immediately sent Track Superintendent Keefe, with Major F. Sydney Cotton, by special car to question the men further and to determine what was actually seen.

TOWNS OF HOLY LAND HAVE APPEARANCE OF CITIES OF THE DEAD SINCE EARTHQUAKE

By Associated Press.

Jerusalem, July 13.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Four hundred bodies of victims of the earthquake in Palestine Monday have ben recovered from the debris in Palestine cities and villages.

A list of casualties compiled by the authorities places the number of injured at 450.

No casualties were reported among the Jewish population in the country districts. Thousands of families all over the country spent last night in the open air fearing a repetition of the earthquake. Not a house in Jerusalem or Hebron is without some damage.

The loss suffered by public and private buildings in the earthquake was set at $1,250,000 in a tentative estimate tonigth.

Jerusalem, July 13.—Nablaus, ancient Samaritan centre, 30 miles north of Jerusalem, and other towns in the Holy Land appear like cities of the dead, say reports which were received in Jerusalem today of the disastrous earthquake that rocked the region Monday afternoon.

Latest official estimates of the casualties place the dead in Palestine at more than 150 and in Transjordania at 100. The total injured is given as more than 500. Unofficial figures are much higher, some estimates of the dead touching 1,000. Up to the present no Americans or Europeans have been reported among the victims.

Details from many of the affected places were still being awaited today, but the story of the fate of Nablus says it presents an awful spectacle of destruction. Scarcely a house in the old part of the town escaped. Some collapsed entirely, while others seem to hold together by a miracle.

High buildings piled fantastically above narrow streets collapsed like cards, burying not only the inmates but persons in the markets below.

Usually busy streets are deserted save for ocasional cowed figures salvaging bedding on the backs of camels or donkeys to take to improvised camps outside the town, where the inhabitants are collected in pathetic groups.

Sometimes a long wailing procession passed with a crude coffin at the head—the latest harvest of sonic digging party.

The work of exhumation is progressing steadily under the direction of the British police.

MANY NARROW ESCAPES FROM DEATH RECORDED IN QUAKE THROUGHOUT HOLY LAND

By Associated Press.

New York, July 14.—Dispatches from Jerusalem to the Jewish Telegraphic agency say that figures compiled up to the present show 670 persons are killed and 3,000 wounded in the earthquake in Palestine and Transjordania. The damage is estimated at $2,000,000.

The stricken areas are described as presenting scenes similar to those of a battle field. Thousands of tents have been raised to care for the families made homeless, while transports of foods are being sent from Jerusalem and Tel-Aviv for the sufferers.

By Associated Press.

Jerusalem, Palestine, July 14.—Examination of the wreckage of government house, badly damaged in Monday's earthquake, revealed that a stone from a partially wrecked tower hurtled through the roof of the chaper, destroying a picture of the former German Emperor in Biblical robes.

One of the worst damaged buildings in Jerusalem if not in the entire Holy Land region affected by the quake is the Hebrew University. Its library and chemical laboratory suffered most. The damage to the university is estimated at $50,000. A tentative estimate of the losses suffered by public and private buildings in the earthquake was set at $1,250,000.

Some narrow escapes from death when the earth trembled have been reported. A train on which Colonel Symes, government secretary, was travelling, was derailed by the shock in the Yermuk valley. It was thrown to the left against an embankment; had it been thrown to the right it would have fallen down a 300 foot precipice.

A chance postponement of a class from three to four o'clock at a girls' school in Es Salt saved the pupils and teachers, for in the interim the school was demolished.

Quake Fatalities Differ in Reports

By Associated Press.

London, July 14.—Reports from the Holy Land earthquake zone differ widely as to the number of persons killed and injured. The latest tend to discount the large figures given in some earlier dispatches from Cairo of more than 1,000 dead.

A Jerusalem report received by Reuters gives the following official figures:

At Ammen 9 killed, 35 seriously injured. At Es Salt, 35 killed, 34 seriously injured, and in the remainder of Transjordania, 20 killed, 32 seriously injured.

The Haifa (Syria) correspondent of the Daily Mail says that in Palestine and Transjordania 500 persons were killed and that in Jerusalem and the surrounding districts more than 700 houses were damaged. The damage in Jerusalem is estimated in this dispatch at about $500,000.

News from the stricken area continues fragmentary and no reliable story covering the whole disaster is available.

OLD INDIAN FIGHTER BACK WITH 7TH CAVALRY BEFORE RETIREMENT FROM SERVICE

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 13.—There is rejoicing tinged with sorrow out in the barracks of the Seventh Cavalry at Fort Bliss, Texas, for a sturdy old Indian fighter who for more than thirty years knew no other home than the Seventh, is back again to his last command.

He is Colonel Selah R. H. Tompkins on the army lists, but to the troopers of the Seventh and to nearly every officer of the army he is "Tommy" Tompkins.

From shave-tail second lieutenant to colonel commanding, Colonel Tompkins has carried his saber in the Seventh through every commissioned grade, with honor to himself and the regiments he loved. He was born in Washington, D. C., son of General Charles L. Tompkins, and of a family that has contributed its sons to the officer corps of the American army ever since that army came along. Lieutenant-Colonel Daniel D. Tompkins, a brother, also a cavalryman, remains in the service and another cavalry brother, Colonel Frank Tompkins, retired, is at Norwich University, Vermont, teaching the cavalry training unit there things it should know of army life.

Will Be Retired.

Next Sunday Col. "Tommy" will lay aside his saber on his 64th birthday and the occasion will be made one of honor to him and regret that his active service is at an end.

Even the serious-minded War Department was touched in his behalf by emotion such as it barely shows. It was a special War Department order that sent the Colonel back from command of Camp Stanley, Texas to the Seventh at Fort Bliss for the last week of his active service that he might round out his career with the regiment with which all but six years of his army life had been spent.

Colonel Tompkins commanded the Seventh when it rode into Mexico with Pershing on Villa's trail. He received a silver star citation for his services then. During the war, he led the Seventh in its trying work along the border as back in 1900 he rode with it against the Sioux in the battle of Wounded Knee. There is no doubt where his heart is, for his preference cards at the War Department indicating the type of duty he desires, call attention to his long service with the Seventh and add:

"My preference is to serve that regiment, wherever it is."

Tompkins still has the ruddy, slender look of the horseman of the plains. His hair is tinged with white now, but the flowing mustache that was the style among the old Indian scouts, cavalry officers and other cavaliers of the plains in the days when the west was in the winning, is still reddish. And it is the last of its kind in the army.

DELAYED SUMMER DESCENDS HEAVILY ON NEW YORK AREA

By Associated Press.

New Yoak, July 13.—The summer began making up in earnest today for the lateness of its coming and "prostration weather" was the order of the day over the eastern half of the country.

The first prostrations of the day here were an aged man who collapsed in a subway station at City Hall and a man overcome on the street in Harlem. Yesterday three persons were prostrated and the heat indirectly caused the death of one man.

The temperature moved up at a steady two degrees an hour gait, being 82 at 11 o'clock, and with the peak not expected until late afternoon.

Humidity was 72.

As the rising heat began to be felt during the morning Miami and Key West, Fla., were in the lead with temparatures of 84 but score of cities in many sections were pressing forward for such doubtful honor as first place might be.

RELIEF PROMISED FROM HEAT WAVE IN CITIES OF EAST

By Associated Press.

New York, July 14.—Twenty-five persons in cities in the East were killed by the heat in the last 24 to 36 hours, it was shown by compilations made here today.

Three others in New England towns were killed in electrical storms which brought only temporary relief to the heat blanketed section yesterday.

Although predictions were for slightly cooler weather today, forenoon temperatures gave little indication of relief.

In New York where five persons had died since the heat wave appeared, the temperature at 10 o'clock was 80 and climbing. The humidity was holding at 75.

From Pennsylvania came reports that five had died during the day.

PRESIDENT ANKENMAN OF HOUSTON BUFFALOES PEEVED OVER ALLEGED STATEMENTS

By Associated Press.

Houston, Texas, July 12.—Replying to Doak Robert's implication that the Houston Buffaloes may change hands within the next 90 days, President Ankenman of the Houston club, Tuesday declared that the Buffaloes were going ahead with work on the new baseball park, and that there would be no alteration in the policy put forward in spite of the agitation that has cropped out in the northern section of the Texas League.

"Why President Roberts gave out such publicity is beyond me," declared Ankenman. "The Texas League is not going to get any one to buy the ball club, and I fail to see what they expect to gain by circulating such reports. There is no truth in them.

"Doak Roberts and Branch Rickey, vice president of the Houston club and official of the St. Louis Cardinals, have been appointed as members of a board of arbitration and a third man will complete the board. These members will be ready in the near future to thrash out the whole thing.

"These three men will set a value on the Houston club, in accordance with the league's wishes. However, they won't find a buyer."

BELIEVE IT OR NOT.

Portland, Ore., July 13.—An intensive program of Sunday daylight saving will begin Sunday at Clinton Kelly Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. P. M. Blankinsop, pastor, has just made this announcement.

Church over at 10 o'clock, the congregation still has a chance for an early start for a day of motoring, golfing, fishing, as it may choose.

WELL BURNING IN HUTCHINSON COUNTY AGAIN THURSDAY

By Associated Press.

Amarillo, Texas, July 14.—The McMillen Oil Corporation's No. 2 Sanford well in section 82, block 46, of H. & T. C. survey and in the Sanford-Paramount pool of Southern Hutchinson County, where nine men lost their lives May 26, when it caught fire while passing through the big gas, is on fire again.

A bolt of lightning struck the well at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning, and the severity of the strike caused the Bradenhead to break and permit the 75,000,000 feet of gas that had been shut in to pour forth and into the fire. The result is a fire that has caused all operations in the Sanford-Paramoun pool to be shut down until the burning well is shot out.

CORSICANA BOY MAKES EXCELLENT RECORD AT CMTC

Special to the Sun.

San Antonio, Texas, July 12.—Largent Thompson, son of Mrs. W. S. Thompson, 342 North Twelfth street, Corsicana, was Tuesday selected as the best field artillery student in the Citizens Military Training Camp at Fort Sam Houston.

In Memory of Mrs. George Walton.

On the afternoon of May 14, 1927, the Death Angel visited the home of Mr. Walton and family, taking from him his dear companion and their sweet mother, leaving their home so sad and lonely. She had been in bad health for a number of years but bore her suffering and ill health with patience, smiles and a sweet, jolly disposition, always carrying rays of sunshine wherever she went, if not feeling too bad. She was a true christian, always ready to lend a helping hand in time of need or trouble; so sympathetic; often expressing sympathy for her husband whom she thought was working too hard. She loved her quiet, country home, and there is where her affections were centered with her large family. But, alas! the Reaper came one eve and took her away "to that home where changes never come; no pain, no sorrow, toil or care." Yes, 'tis a bright and blessed home, who would not fain, be resting there. I often look at the old home on the hill where she spent so many happy days, and shed a tear of sadness, wishing I could see her coming aain. But, alas! those days are past; only sweet memories linger near.

"Another one from us has gone,
Her precious voice is still;
Her vacant rocker in the corner sits,
But never can be filled.

She was laid to rest in Oakwood cemetery beneath a beautiful mound of flowers and silently sleeping by the side of her daughter whom had gone before.

ONE WHO LOVED HER.

NEGRO IS HELD ON ROBBERY CHARGE AS RESULT CRAP GAME

The city police department has turned over to the county authorities a negro, Beauford Watts, who is charged with robbing a Mexican named Louis Barrea. The robbery, it is alleged by Officer Tickle, who made the arrest, came as the aftermath of a crap game between the two.

It seems that the negro and the Mexican had been gambling for quite a while and the negro decided he was not getting anywhere in digging into the Mexican's roll so he decided that quick action was necessary. Acting on this hunch he is alleged to have forcibly taken Barrea's money from him, thereby ending the game to his satisfaction.

Both negro and the Mexican were fined for gaming Monday morning by Corporation Judge Melear and the negro was then turned over to the county on a charge of robbery.

"The Traveler."

In memory of Grandma Keith, who died May 29, 1927 at Pursley, Texas, and was buried at Richland, Texas, May 30.

To that beautiful land we call
Heaven.
The place where we all want to be,
Is a road that leads onward and upward
And a lone, weary traveler we see.

An angel is hast'ning to open
The pearly gates far and wide,
A-bidding this pilgrim welcome
To the joys on the other side.

Who is the traveler fair angel?
Some one's sister or brother?
Ah, no far greater than these
'Tis some one's precious mother.

She is a mother old and gray,
And bent with the passing years.
As she toils through sunshine and shadows
And up through the vale of tears.

It has been her lot to be happy
And then came her saddest hours
Many a bitter weed has she plucked
That grew mid her lovely flowers.

Oh, dear tired weary mother
If we friends and loved ones knew
How thy loving hands have guided us
And she steered us safely through.

How much heart ache and suffering
A mother's lot must be
In bringing up her family
We'd give more praise to thee.

But angel's voices are singing
And a loving form comes near,
Nothing but praises and gladness,
For the weary heart to hear.

Into the heavenly portals
Up from this world of care
Our dear old mother is waiting
To welcome her children there.

A FRIEND.
Pursley, Texas.

In Loving Remembrance of Our Dear Sister.

On June 8, 1927, God sent His death angel to the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Monroe and took from them their little girl, Robert Ray. She was sick only four days.

It was so hard to give her up but God saw best to call her home out of her suffering. She leaves a heart-broken mother and dady and five lonesome sisters. Funeral services were held at the family grave yard at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

May the God of all mercy, wisdom and love watch over us all and comfort us, and may we all live in the future so that when we cross the river we shall again behold that sweet, smiling face, and be reunited with her where there is no sad parting from loved ones. There is only a mist between us. Our dear sister so precious and so true,
Only a mist between sunrise
That hides you from our view.

I never knew what it would mean
To look upon thy vacant chair.
To look with a sad broken heart
But never see you sitting there.

To know her was to love her.
Our little sister so dear.
Once heaven seemed away up
yonder,
But since you have gone up there
it seemed so near.

Dear friends and loved ones, do not weep. Once her sweet smiling face was for us all, but God loved her too, so He said come home, little precious, you are too pure to stay in that sinful world.

(Written by one who loved her dearly, her sister, Wilma Monroe.)

The shell on the small egg had the natural egg color and was perfectly formed, and except for its unusual small size appeared normal in every respect. The egg measured one and one-quarter by one and three-quarter inches.

The well of Winemiller Oil Company, being drilled in Wise county, is shut down on account of shortage of water.

Lynch-Stahl-Burres No. 2 Koelzer topped sand at 1633 feet and cemented casing at 1624 feet. This is a west offset to the Ruwaldt No. 1 Koelzer.

The Sun Oil Company is coring for the 1300-foot sand today on the Hecker lease, southwest of the Ruwaldt well.

Lynch-Stahl-Burres No. 1, on their fee land, east of Ruwaldt No. 2 Koelzer, started coring for the sand today at 1628 feet.

Quick thinking and hard work on the part of oil field workmen in the Muenster field Saturday morning stopped a fire that might have caused hundreds of thousands of dollars of loss to operators in that field. While tubing was being run in the Ruwaldt No. 2 Koelzer this morning about 9:30 o'clock one of the workmen struck a match to light a cigarette and in an instant the gas flowing from the well was ignited and the hole was soon a roaring furnace. It looked for a time as though it would be impossible to save the well, but, with the assistance of most every man in the Muenster field, the blaze was finally brought under control by the use of chemicals and steam. The well was reported to be only slightly damaged and will be placed on pump.—Gainesville Register.

My Dear Farmers and Fuddlers

Now that the crops are about laid by and you are getting ready to visit and receive visitors, I ask you to call at the store and fill your system with ice water and your pipes with home-spun smoking tobacco, and make yourselves comfortable. I will keep open house for your entertainment, and everything will be informal and if you don't have a good time, don't cuss me. You will find the cuspidore in the corner near the desk, the tobacco in the right hand drawer, or sitting open on the shelf, and a box of matches on top of the desk.

Our lady customers will find the chewing gum in a pigeonhole in the desk and chairs in front of the fan, so when you come to town, be sure and get you a chew of gum to keep your husbands company while they chew tobacco. Bring the children, all the children and turn them loose in the store, and let them tear up or kick over anything they like and have a good time. This invitation is issued to all classes and colors, regardless of kith, kin, or connections, whether you have taken a bath or not.

Come one, or all at onced, take your time, don't hurry. Have all the fun you can.

Yours,

T. C. PERRY

218 North Commerce Street.

SWIMMING LESSONS DISCONTINUED UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE

The free swimming lessons at the Natatorium, announced for the entire week, have been discontinued for the present on account of the fact that Robert Austin, expert swimming coach, has been called out of town on account of the illness of his mother. He is expected to return in a short time and the free swimming lessons will be resumed, due announcement of the date to be made.

There was a large crowd at the Nat Monday evening, quite a few being there for the main purpose of taking advantage of the offer of free swimming instruction. There was some confusion about the instruction, and Robert Cooksey, manager of the Nat, states that when Mr. Austin returns announcement will be made as to the time of the lessons and those who desire instruction in swimming will be asked to register and report at a certain point in the pool to obviate any misunderstanding.

TAKING CORE ON LITTLE FARM TEST OF THOS. J. JONES

Crew on the Thomas J. Jones et al Little 1, about four miles west of Corsicana, was engaged in taking a core Wednesday. A core was aken Tuesday afternoon of a hard sand that was thought to be one of the Woodbine series. The sand was picked up about 2200 feet, and the well was making a slight showing of gas.

A second attempt to secure a core Tuesday night resulted in a failure as the sand cut the core barrel. A third attempt was being made Wednesday afternoon with an Elliott core barrel.

If the Woodbine is picked up in the coring, the future of the well will be determined within a few days; the sand varies around 2200 feet in this area.

The Wild Rose test on the adjoining tract of the Little farm has been shut down for several days, waiting for parts for a pump.

The Kirby Petroleum company test in Cherokee county left the hard chalk at 3808 feet Tuesday night, and was still drilling Wednesday at 3815 feet.

The Southern Pine A-2 in Cherokee county was coring in white lime Wednesday. A sand picked up a few days ago tested salt water, and the well is being deepened. It was drilling about 4617 feet.

The Southern Pine B-1 was drilling in shale at 2912 Wednesday and preparations were being made to set casing. The Reynolds Mortgage Company test was still fishing at 3774 Tuesday. Operations were shut down Wednesday until additional fishing tools could be secured.

The Earl and Ransdale, offset to the Elliott and Clark discovery well, was coring Wednesday at 4772.

BOY WAS SICK

Texan Tells How He Got Acquainted With the Good Work of Black-Draught as a Laxative.

Glenflora, Texas.—"I had a sick spell when just fifteen years old," says Mr. George W. Maness, R. F. D. 2, this place. "Anyone who has had chills, like I had, is apt to remember them. I was a sick boy—just lay around the home, weak. My skin was yellow and I could hardly stand up. I had hard chills.

"My father gave me quinine. Someone told him to give me Black-Draught with it. He brought some home, and they fixed it up like a tea. It wasn't very good, but I was so sick I would take anything.

"After a few days, I began to feel better. I was hungry and could eat. I kept on taking the tea for awhile, and I got well. I haven't had chills since then, but I have taken a lot of Black-Draught since that time. It is a family medicine with me."

Where assistance is needed in the way of a laxative or cathartic, Thedford's Black-Draught should be taken, as often as necessary, to open the bowels and put them in a healthy and normal state of activity.

FOKKER BUILDING GIANT BOMBER FOR U. S. GOVERNMENT

By Associated Press.

Tetersboro, N. J., July 13.—It was learned here today on reliable authority that Anthony G. Fokker, noted Dutch aeronautic inventor, is building a huge monoplane bomber for the United States government at his plant at Hasbrouck Heights.

The plane is to have a wing spread of 90 feet, mount two machine guns and weight approximately 15,000 pounds when loaded. The load will comprise 2,000 pounds of high explosives.

The plane, in general design and construction, will resemble the America, which Commander Byrd flew to France. The chief difference in the two will be in the matter of engines. Byrd's plane carried three Wright whirlwind engines. The bomber now being built will carry but two motors, both Pratt-Whitneys.

The unofficial top speed estimate for the plane is estimated at 120 miles an hour. It is the first monoplane bomber ever built in America, according to the Associated Press information.

TERRACING SCHOOL AT GROESBECK HELD FARMERS' ATTENTION

The Federal Farm Loan banks are determined that land on which they hold mortgages shall be adequately terraced where needed and a two-day terracing school held this week at Groesbeck was inspired by this policy, said Henry Gentry, Navarro county farm agent, who was one of the instructors. Two hundred farmers attended the first session of the school which was arranged by the Farm Loan bank, Extension Service and Groesbeck Chamber of Commerce.

All members of the Limestone county commissioners' court were present for part of the sessions and will sign the certificates to be issued those farmers who satisfactorily completed the training. Phases of terracing were handled by representatives from the Farm Loan Bank Extension Service and county agents. Several agricultural writers were present.

County Agent Gentry is considering a terracing school for Navarro county farmers at a later date.
